LITTLE BIT
. . . on most anything

A management consulting firm more often than not gets saddled with the "efficiency-expert" image. Griffenhagen-Kroeger, the firm that recently completed a study for the city of Seaside, is no exception.

Such firms normally recoil at the "efficency" epithet. They argue with some justification that oversimplifying the complex organizational structure of a 100-plus-employee, $1.9-million - annual - budget business like the city of Seaside is a disservice . . . to the expertise of the firm, and to the city. We'll admit that the G-K report is more complex than just finding ways to make the city run smoother and less expensively. But we also have a strong feeling that the actual findings of the report artn't necessarily any more important than the firm's mere physical presence doing their thing.

It's an old saw that an organization and its people put on their best efficiency when being scrutinized. If for no other reason than that, the G-K report probably accomplished quite a bit. It has made employees think about their jobs, to try to relate their duties to the overall operation of their department and hence the city.

But this particular report has some other side benefits — as we noted last week, the firm has lilted music into our ears with its cost-and-function critique of the city hall. It said with some authority what others have said often without much effect: 'No matter what it has to prove, a poor city has not business building a "white elephant."'

Time and again we*ve heard our beautiful city hall — and it really is — justified as a sort of emotional obsession to squelch those guys who said it couldn't be done.

Well, it has been done, but at a cost of $44,000 a year for 30 years, 25 of them still to go. That's more than $1.2 million — principal of $600,000, interest of $600,000.

Okay, that's old hat, spilt milk. What we would hope is that it doesn't happen again. G-K said the architect Edward Durrel Stone apparently let "function follow form" not the other way around when the architect designed city hall. We now must ask if the same has been done with the new design for the library.

Aside from the controversy over the location next to city hall, which we already have opposed, we would suggest that G-K be paid a few bucks more and let them go over the Stone library. They might agree with the design and the location, but we believe their assessment would be informed, informative and welcome.

As is obvious, we are pretty sold on much of what G-K has told the city. And while we have a feeling that such studies are stock-in-trade to a new city manager and could tend to become an impersonal means for reorganization, we believe the G-K study was $7,500 well spent.

Now, we sturst that the new city council will allow City Manager Milt Farrell to make the best use of the study to get his first firm grip on the administration of the city since he took over nearly a year ago.

As we've also said before in this column, the honeymoon is over. Farrell's job is adminstration; the council's is policy and politics. We know he'll gladly leave their job alone if they'll do the same. CML

Recount fails to change election; Mrs. Carey, Pit trade still win

A recount made a closer race of it, but Mrs. Pearl Carey and Jerry McGrath remained April 14 city election winners, ousting incumbent Councilmen Bud Houser and Emil Schmidt.

At the same time, a recount of Proposition M, the ballot measure on whether the city council should trade the Pit for the old city hall, also remained a winner.

When the recount was completed Tuesday afternoon, McGrath had 1574, Mrs. Carey 1476, Houser 1446 and Schmidt 1176. The Yes vote for M was 1478, and the No vote was 1383. (A recount map of election precincts appears below.)

The real contest was between Mrs. Carey and Houser, who asked for the recount when the final election tally on April 15 showed him trailing Mrs. Carey for the second council seat by 37 votes, 1482-1445.

That triggered political fireworks.

With the election in doubt, it gave an opportunity for the council majority of Mayor Lou Haddad, Schmidt and Houser to move on enacting the propositions.

A special council meeting was called last Tuesday night, April 21, after the canvassing of the ballots for mayor and the three propositions. The mayor specified that discussion and possible action on the exchange of the Pit for the old city and adjacent maintenance building would be on the agenda. At that time, the proposition showed a winning margin of 84 votes (an election chart in last week's News-Sentinel had the margin incorrectly at 39 votes.)

But before the meeting two businessmen in the Pit, Johnie Franklin and Jesse Willard, called for a recount of the proposition.

At the special meeting Haddad still sought council action to make the exchange of property, but since the proposition was to be recounted it wasn't canvassed and that meant a 4-1 vote was needed. Haddad, Schmidt and Houser favored the move, but Oliver Murray and Steve Ross continued their behement opposition.

In a second attempt, Haddad managed the same 3-2 vote on a motion to trade the property subject to the recount. That would mean that if the proposition were to pass, then the 3-2 simple majority would be all that would be needed to effect the exchange.

That move was stalled Monday by Jane Van Hook, director of the Legal Aid Society, who obtained a temporary injunction from Superior Court Judge Ralph Drummond preventing any action on the matter until May 8. The city was also ordered to show cause why a permanent restraining order shouldn't be issued against the exchange of the property.

In her request, Mrs. Van Hook argued that the "lame duck council" had no power to act since the council election itself was subject to recount.

The stage is set, then, for the canvassing of the recounted ballots and validating of the election results next Thursday, May 7, at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. Carey and McGrath will be sworn in afterward.

Although the injunction prohibits any action on the Pit trade, the issue will then become one of whether the proposition is a mandatory or a descretionary one. Murray has argued that it is discretionary because the language includes the word "may" rather than "will."

The council had already been scheduled to meet early so that students from Seaside High School could participate in Youth in Government Day.

Mrs. Linda Bassett, Mrs. Isabelle Gomez, Mrs. Jeanette Mayor and Mrs. Bessie Sims conducted the recount.

Building activity slides in March

Building in Seaside took a nose-dive in March.

Permits issued by Chief Building Inspector George Machado totaled only $82,221, the lowest monthly total since the $48,495 in January of 1967.

Thanks however to the issuance of a permit for Butts Pontiac - Cadillac in January and several home starts in the Del Monte Heights Redevelopment project, first quarter totals in the city neared the million-dollar mark. January's total was $597,235 and February's was $248,193. That brought to $931,649 the total for January-February-March of 1970. During the same period a year ago, Del Monte Manor was started, so comparison with that $2,314,363 figure is not applicable.

Del Monte Heights, which has literally dominated the homebuilding market in Seaside since 1966, dropped to only two starts in March, which was the main reason for the decline. For the first three months, 22 single-family residence permits have been issued totaling $422,950. Included are two small experimental retirement bungalows designed and constructed by archetect Marcel Sedletzky. The value of the homes, which are located at 1762 Mendocino and 1764 Highland, is $8,000 each, which does not include land or improvements.

Building activity in DMH morrors graphically the increase in construction costs across the nation. Since the beginning of 1966 there have been 244 single-family homes built in the project with a total value of $4,655,630. That's an average of little more than $19,000, construction costs only, without land. But the 27 homes built in 1966 averaged $16,585. The average cost of 62 homes in 1967 jumped to $18,270. In 1968 the average for 76 homes was $18,850. Last year in 1969, the average cost leaped more than $2,500 per home to $21,400 for 57 houses. Without the two Sedletzky homes in the first three months of 1970, the average was $21,150.

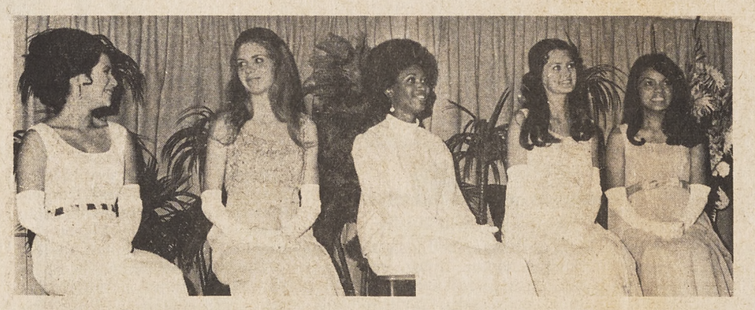
Machado says his department will probably be revising upward its formula used for determing the costs of the homes when the permits are issued. He said most houses built recently are costing contractors more than the estimates on the building report.

Demolition regurned to the report during the first quarter after an absence in the latter part of 1969. Permits were issued for razing 10 homes, five sheds and one commercial buidling in the Laguna Grande Redevelopment project. Total cost was $4,106. Elsewhere demoliton costs were $4,180.

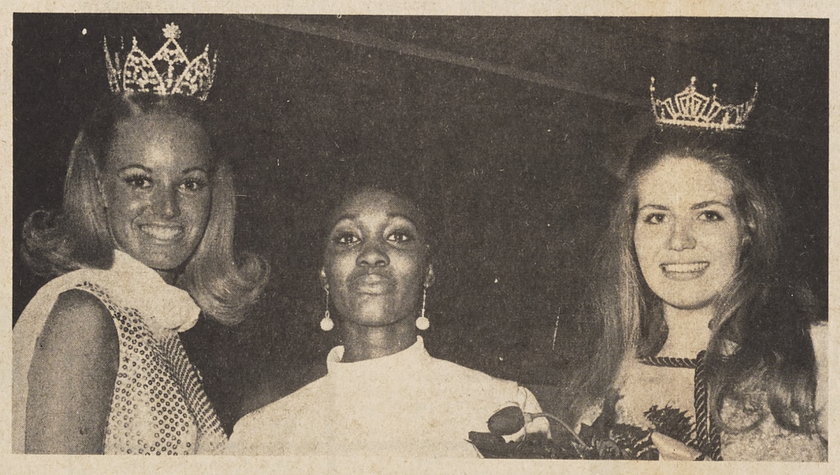
Fees to the city from building, electrical and plumbing permits issued for the first three months of 1970 totaled $4,463.25, compared with $9,324.60 for the corresponding period in 1969.

Crowning a beauty

JOICY REVIS, a Hartnell College student from Salinas, sang her way to the Miss Monterey County beauty pageant crown Sunday night before a packed house at the Outrigger. Her talent, beauty and personality won out over eight others — one each from Monterey and Marina and two each from Seaside, Pacific Grove and Carmel. A $300 scholarship goes with the title and Miss Revis will compete this summer in the Miss California competition, a preliminary to the Miss America pageant in September.



EXCITED anticipation is clear by the expressions of the finalists, from left, Susan Rabano, Joicy Revis, Gwendolyn Lee, Terry Correll and Edith DePadua. Other contestants were Sandra Scott of Seaside, Elizabeth Aguirre and Carolyn Foord of Pacific Grove, and Catherine Sandman of Carmel. A tenth contestant , Cyr Ann Ziebell of Marina, was unable to compete because of illness.



POSING with the new queen, Joicy Revis, right, were Miss California, Susan Ellen Anton, who crowned her, and Gwendolyn Lee of Seaside, third runnerup.

SUSAN RABANO, 20, of Monterey was first runnerup.

WHO CARES

Mel Vercoe

The latest fad, threatening to force the pollution fad aside, is the Women's Liberation Movement, in which women express indignation and disapproval of and at such things as men viewing them as objects possessing value because of their sex, etcetera, and the world should rejoice, because this is an indicator that apparently we don't have anything worthwhile to be concerned about - anything else, that is.

And then we wonder what fad will come along when present fads have run their peculiar courses. One thing we might consider in this category is the sitting fad, whereby standing will be virtually taboo.

Housewives would sit at the sink to do dishes, sit by the range when tending the cooking, traffic policemen would sit on stools while directing traffic, and farmers would move their stools from plant to plant while weeding their gardens.

Another fad, the "politicians telling the truth fad" is actually too far in the future to consider at this time.

But no matter how absurd or trivial, we must never underestimate a fad. There are too many side effects.

The "get to the moon" fad, absurd as it was and still is, served to divert attention from two approaching disasters - the growing Asian involvement and a general combination of other international and national problems (crime, racial problems, overpopulation etcetera).

And it was an escape - a cause that could be used as justification for not noticing that such things as hunger and injustices existed. At least it must have convinced the rest of the world that everything in the U.S. was alive and well, since we apparently had no particular use for 24 billion dollars in public money.

But now at long last a terrible pain has smitten the countryside - a pain known as "pocketbook angina", caused by a general draining of taxpayers' wallets by high taxes, inflation, the high cost of beer and cigarettes and carburetor repairs - all basically a result of the "moom fad", a war that was partially hidden behind it, and a fatal syndrome known as the "escape syndrome".

Since everyone by now has noticed that our withdrawal from Asian affairs is prompted more by the distress of "pocketbook angina" than by intelligence or moral considerations, there is no need to mention it at this time, except that the pain can be partially relieved by a new miracle drug known in the trade as "pollution scaritin".

A typical taxpayer, suffering terribly from pocketbook angina, can be given several doses of pollution scare (scaratin), after which he breaks out in a cold sweat about what pollution might do to the paint on his car, and for a little while he forgets to feel the pocketbook angina.

And the good part of it is, while he is not feeling so much pain he can be talked into allowing the moon program and the war to continue a little longer.

And so, we find that pollution, which helps to end the war because it contributes to our domestic problems load that will drain some funds from the Pentagon, can also be used to extend the war.

Out of all this we must conclude that fads can get rather involved and many sided as well as interesting and utterly stupid. So, as good citizens, all, let us not scoff lightly at anything that looks anything at all like it might become a fad. It might save the world, or, on the other hand, it might very well end it.

There will also be one week of overnight camping at Big Sur for children 10 to 11 1/2 years old, who will be in the fifth or sixth grade in September. The Big Sur week will be August 10 to 14, and the cost will be $2 per child.

Camp Amigos, a registered non-profit corporation, receives most of its support from churches and community service organizations on the Monterey Peninsula, including the Crosby Foundation, M.P.V.S., the Monterey Rotary Club and Kiwanis clubs in Monterey, Carmel and Carmel Valley. Several local churches also contribute funds and volunteer assistance for the camp.

Seek valor winners

A group of Army and Navymen on the Peninsula who are interested in establishing a Monterey County Chapter of the Legion of Valor are looking for potential members. The Legion is a society of men who hold the Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Cross, Navy Cross or Air Force Cross.

Founded in 1890 by veterans of the Civil and Indian Campaigns, the Legion of Valor is the oldest veterans organization in the country. It was chartered by act of Congress in 1955, and now has approximately 1200 members across the country.

The Society's primary objective is to further patriotic allegiance to the United States. Its members participate in sommunity projects upon request, and conduct a nation-wide program to recognize outstanding ROTC cadets by awarding a Legion of Valor Bronze Cross for Achievement. Individual acts of civilian gallantry are recognized by awarding the Silver Cross for Valor.

Those in the area interested in joining the legion can contact Maj. George C. D'Avignon at 242-2996/3120, Capt. Edward W. Spiniao, 242-6124; or Lt. Cmdr. Allen E. Weseleskey, Box 1561, Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey.

WOMEN'S HEALTH

WOMEN
ALCOHOLICS

Esperts fear that alcoholism is engulfing women at an unprecedented rate.

Until 10 years ago, male alcoholics outnumbered women by about five to one. But authorities on the subject believe there are now three male alcoholics to every female alcoholic. Or even only two.

Precise figures are difficult to com by because so many woman alcoholics are "invisible" -- housewives drinking secretly in their homes and caught only by their husbands and children. Job-holding women alcoholics, of couse, run the same risks of discovery by colleagues and bossea as men alcoholics.

Alcoholic mothers tend to blame their disease -- and doctors believe it really is a disease -- on such causes as boredom, loneliness, depression, marital troubles and fears of aging. Like men alcoholics, they tend to come from heavy-drinking families. Sixty-two percent of alcoholics have at least one alcoholic parent.

The emotional havoc created by an alcoholic mother is so pronounced that it is surprising that any children escape. Many alcoholic mothers try to retain the illusion that their children do not know about their drinking but it is invariably an illusion, the experts say. One alcoholic mother learned this when her three-year-old daughter tried to grab a can of beer from her hand. At that point, the woman went permanently on the wagon.

A DOCTOR'S
"PAINFUL DECISION"

A self described conservative, purdish doctor, living in a conservative, strait laced, agricultural community, finds himself prescribing birth control pills for certain teenagers after years of refusing to give contraception to minors.

"I had to make a painful decision," recalls Dr. William B. Thompson, assistant professor of gynecology at the University of California at Irvine. "I spent years in Los Angeles working at a Crittendon Home for unmarried mothers. I saw four 12-year-old girls there who were pregnant and who didn't know why they were pregnant. You have to be concerned about such tragedies. I decided that my work was too late."

Better to prevent the tragedy, the obstetrician decided, than insist that a young girl endure an unwanted pregnancy before she receives contraceptive advice.

The Youngest patient for whom Dr. Thompson has prescribed an oral contraceptive is 10-1/2. The youngest patient in whom he's inserted an intrauterine device is 12.

It's a fact of a gynecologist's life, Dr. Thompson says, that early sexuality exists. "If a good-looking 15 year old comes into my office, he says regretfully, "I know why she's there. She is no longer a virgin."

Win school grants

Eight Seaside High School students have been named as California State Scholar finalists.

The students are: Victor Cork, Louis Davidson, David Hollingsworth, John Koontz, Yolanda Lyle, Ruth Mirikitani, Mark L. Phillips and Dale Strawn.

These awards are applied to college tuition and fees and can be renewed annually if the recipient maintains academic and financial eligibility.

Parents of the finalists are: Mr. and Mrs. Alan Cork, 468 Reindollar, Marina; Mr. and Mrs. Billy Davidson, 3151 Eucalyptus, Marina; Mr. and Mrs. Owen Hollingsworth, 1945 Waring, Seaside; Mr and Mrs. Maurice Koontz, 3048 Bostick, Marina; Mr. and Mrs. James Lyle, 461 Carmel, Marina; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mirikitani, 3113 Bradley Circle, Marina; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Phillips, 108 Carswell, Fort Ord; Mr. and Mrs. John Strawn 2000 Highland, Seaside.

Emergency communications system installed

Through a new linkup in emergency radio systems, nurses and doctors at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula are now able to communicate with rescue and aid men at the site of injury accidents.

It is done through one of two new communications systems given to the hospital by the Auxiliary of Community Hospital. One ties the hospital into the Monterey County Communications Department at Salinas. The other is an internal system by which department heads and other key personnel remain in constant radio and telephone touch whereever they are in the hospital area through the use of personal communicators.

Through the system, hospital personnel can communicate with any radio-equipped ambulance or other emergency vehicle in the county. It permits instant radio communication between Community Hospital and any other hospital so equipped or any pole station or sheriff's office.

As a result, it is possible for an ambulance aidman to describe the condition of an injured ptient being transported to the hospital and for him to receive advice from a nurse or doctor at the hospital regarding emergency teatment of the patient until he arrives at the hsopital.

In the event of a disaster such as a major earthquake, a sinking ship or a plane crash, the system can be used to route injured patients to hospitals where space is available or other emergency facilities.

The internal system is one in which 30 employes carry miniaturized receivers. By dialing a special number through the hospital's switchboard, the person wanted is alerted by a buzz on his or her receiver. He or she can listen to the message. It supplements the hospital's loudspeaker system, reducint hospital-wide paging and thereby providing greater comfort to patients.

The two wywtems represent an investment of $17,500 by the Pink Ladies.

Attend circus

Approximately 240 children in grades 3-6 who attend the public schools of the Seaside area are to be guests at the Shriner's Circus, Municipal Stadium, Salinas, for today's 4:30 matinee.

Children were accompanied by volunteer adults, aides and members of the PTA units, who purchased their own circus tickets.

Approximately 40 children attended from each of the elementary schools in the area: Covell, Cabrillo, Noche Buena, Highland, Manzanita, and Ord Terrace.

Monte Vista carnival

Monte Vista Elementary School will hold its May Carnival on Saturday, May 2, from 11 to 3 on the school grounds.

In keeping with Monterey's Bicentennial Year the theme for this year's Carnival will be "Fiesta" and events are planned throughout the day for all ages.

CONSUMER POWER

By YVONNE EARNST

The best way to get more refund forms into the stores in this area is to tell store managers that you are interested in having them. Then, when you do find the forms in the stores, take the time to thank the manager for obtaining them for hi customers.

Many store managers have protested to me that forms were just not available, or that there was nothing they could do about getting them into the stores. But this is just not true. A question to a salesman or a note to a district office of a chain store can work wonders.

The Pillsbury Company even ran an ad in a recent issue of "Supermarket News", asking that store managers write to them if interested in having refund promotion forms. Most big refund campaigns are announced in the retailers' press, and special prices are often offered to buyers in advance of the campaign.

This is why it is often possible to buy a product featured in a refund campaign at a special lower price. It often pays to wait until about two weeks before the deadline before buying a product that is not on your regular shopping list. "Specials" usually start popping up all over town about that time.

Remember to be fair to your fellow refunders in this area by taking only your sahre of the refund forms. The Golden Rule applied here will benefit all.

When you find only the cardboard backing, and all the forms have already been taken, you will often find all the necessary information printed on the backing. Of course, it takes time to writedown the information on a memo pad, but it is more sporting of you to leave the cardboard backing there for the next refunder to see.

If you see a refund offer announced on a specially marked package of a product, buy as many as you need for the refund just as soon as possible. Often, then disappear from the shelves before you have bought the three or more that you need.

If you do miss buying the required number of special packages, though, or someone in the family forgets and throws the label or boxtop away (best to train them to ask first) don't give up on sending for the refund. Just substitute a regular boxtop, and include a note of explanation. Such legitimate requests are seldom denied.

Also if you miss mailing a refund offer in on time, go ahead and send it anyway, even though it is a week or so late. Include a note of explanation, and be sure to put your return address on the envelop in case the box at the post office has been closed. The batting average on refunds mailed lated is nt as high as those mailed with substitute boxtops, but it is enough to warrnt doing it accosionally when the days get away from you.

Always remember to put first-class postage on envelopes and weigh those that border on being overweight to avoid having them refused because of postage due. Much cardboard can be stripped off most boxtops by inserting the tip of a knife in one corner, and peeling off the top paper. Also, part of the background can be trimmed off on such things as box fronts, so long as all the printing and illustrations are left intact.

We've almost covered all aspects of refunding now, but if there are any more questions that come in, we will answer them in future columns.

Reinecke to speak

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke will be featurd speaker at a dinner to be held in Monterey at ath Mark Thomas Inn on Thursday, April 30. He will speak on coastal conservation, development of the California coastal zone and the role of local planning with regard to coastal resources.

Also on the program will be the concert choir of Seaside High School under the direction of Richard Sheere.

The Council of Monterey Bay, Inc (COMB) is sponsoring the dinner. COMB, formerly the Ocean Activities Council of Monterey County Industrial Development Inc. (MCID) is made up of companies, organizations and individuals on the Monterey Peninsula wh are concerned wi the environmental integrity, the economic growth and the social progress of this area.

According to Wallace Holm, COMB president, their objectives are to bring back to the Peninsula a tax base other than tourism and the military' to keep taxes from rising, to create jobs and protect our shoreline and ocean. COMB proposes to do this by attracting ocean-oriented industry and research to the Peninsula. Other projects of the council include working toward the establishment of a marine science graduate-level university on the Peninsula, offering advanced degrees in oceangraphy and the marine sciences. To assist in developing marine science technician programs in local college and secondary schools. And to support efforts to expedite construction of the Monterey Harbor breakwater.

Set music auditions

A number of instrumental music scholarships and grants-in-aid have been announced as available for graduating high school seniors, junior college students and others who quality for admission to Monterey Peninsula College and who perform on brass, woodwind or percussion instruments, strings or piano.

Students who win scholarships in auditions on May 12, will each receive $400 in ten monthly payments beginning in September, providing a monthly evaluation shows that they are earning grades in music courses averaging 2.2. Some students whose present ability does not warrant a scholarship will receive grants-in-aid of $100. Scholarship winners must major or minor in music at MPC.

Application forms may be obtained from music instructors at the various Peninsula high schools or at the college, 980 Fremont, Monterey. Scheduling for auditions will begin early in May.

Blood donation

Direct from his third concert tour around the world, Daniel Llords, solo marionettist, designer, creater and opeator of Llords' "International." will perform at Monterey Peninsula College Saturday.

The musical marionette show for adults - part concert, part theater and all puppetry - will start at 8 p.m. in MPC's new theater on the west side of the campus. De-emphasizing children in marriage

By Louise Chase
Women's Medical News Service

The world would be a much better place if there could be a standing offer of $10,000 to every woman who agreed to be sterilized following the birth of her first child.

Admittedly a fantasy, but Dr. Genevieve Knepfer, assistant clinical professor of psychiatry of the Stanford University School of Medicine, believes strongly that, given the critical nature of the population explosion, we should make a start in de-emphasizing the importance of children.

"I realize that it's very difficult for people to give up having children." said Dr. Knupfer following a symposium on The Contexts of Marriage. "But, while some people ardently desire children, other desire them just because they've been trained to want them. And we could encourage those not very interested in having children, and not make them feel that they're abnormal or strange. Many women are now afraid of the social stigma of remaining childless for fear that they'll be reagrded as unwomanly."

Modern methods of contraception such as the birth control pill can help stem the population explosion but the pyschiatrist believes that a basic change in our social values in imperative. "Everyone could reduce the population by his or her own volition," she points out, "but very few have that much altruism. We could change our values so we wouldn't admire and congratulate people who have a lot of children.

"It's hard to visualize but there might come a day when we'd regard the childless couple as benefactors of humanity and a couple with a lot of children as unduly self-indulgent."

A more enlightened attitude toward the state of being unmarried is also in order, Dr. Knupfer believes. There are incredible pressures forcing a single person to marry, she says.

On the other hand, the psychiatrist recognizes that marriage provides a conforting refuge in an increasingly impersonal society.

Although no one really knows who should get married and who shouldn't, certain criteria seem to be quite reliable indications of what will happen to a marriage.

Good omens listed by Dr. Knupfer are: a college education, income above $5,000, an emphasis within the relationship on companionship rather than passion, a long engagement and frequent exchangs of confidences. The hasty, youthful marriage based on a round of parties and night-clubbing will probably end up in the divorce courts or misery.

Studies of marriage have unearthed one particularly piquant fact: Despite all those in-law jokes, being close to one's parents increases the likelihood that your marriage will be a good one.

Pole posters prohibited

The California penal code and many city ordinances prohibit placing posters or ads on power poles and the practice poses safety hazards to linemen, Pacific Gas and Electric Company has pointed out.

Danger remains even after illegal posters are removed.

"A lineman's climbers may cut out when they strike a nail head," a company spokesman explained. The result sometimes is a painful, dangerous fall.

SOCIAL SECURITY

By Raymond MacDonald

Q I am 50 years old and have been permanently disabled as a result of an industrial accident. We have a son who has been physically handicapped since birth. He is now 25 years old, and has never been able to work. When I file for disability benefits, are there also benefits payable to my son?

A. Yes, since his disability began before he reached 18 and he has continued to be disabled, your son may qualify for benefits on your earnings record. If your wife is not working, or if working is not earning more than $1,680 a year, sho also, may draw benefits. If possible, you should bring in your son's birth record, his medical history, and his school record when you file your application.

Q I have been told a Social Security retirement benefit is based on one's last five years. Is this true?

A. No. Your benefit is based on your average earning over a longer period of time. The number of years used to establish an average varies and depends on whether you are a man or woman, and on your year of birth. Ask at your Social Security office for pamphlet SSI-47 How to Estimate The Amount of your Social Security benefits.

Q I am contemplating going into business for myself. Can I continue to pay into Social Security?

A. Yes. As a matter of fact, it is compulsory. You pay Social Security tax on your net profet of $400 or more in a year. This if filed and paid with your Income Tax.

Tips on fruit trees

Let your gardening imagination go to work. Plant some fruit trees and train them against walls and fences in your garden. The results will be beautiful - the bright colors and interesting patterns will delight you.

Not only will you enjoy the patterns and the colorful foliage, but the trees will also yield tasty fruit for eating.

Many kinds of deciduous and evergreen fruit trees may be trained to grow against walls and fences. Among the deciduous forms are apples, pears, plums, peaches, figs apricots and nectarines. Evergreen trees include citrus--oranges, lemons, limes grapefruit, mandarines and tangelos - and loquats.

Train them flat against the wall in a U-shape or variations thereof, reaching out in a single or two-arm pattern. Pyramid-shape and Christmas tree patterns are also popular.

In Europe, where espaliered trees are frequently trained on stone walls, the walls absorb considerable heat and help the trees mature early. Stone walls aren't common here and nurserymen suggest as substitutes, redwood or wire trellises, redwood posts or durable galvanized wire.

Tie the branches and lateral growth of the tree with non-irritating binding material. Nurseries will have a selection of ties for you to use. As lateral growth appears you merely train it in the pattern you desire. Pruning and clipping, later, will create and maintain the symmetry or design you wish.

Fruit trees grown against fences and walls should be treated the same way as their counterparts grown in open areas. A sunny location and good drainage are chief requisites. Once established, the trees will appreciate periodic feeding and your nurseryman's advice should be solicited as to when and how much.
